

Surge Protection

SURGE PROTECTION

Surge protection is essential to protect electronic equipment such as computers and the like.

When electrical supplies are restored after a power outage, the surge and transients apparent on the supply line can totally destroy electronic equipment. These surges in power are also present during electrical storms. It therefore only makes good sense to protect installations from such surges.

NetPro's focus is on quality and service